

Discipline Policy

1. Introduction

Student Welfare refers to the mental, physical, emotional and spiritual well-being of the student. Accordingly, the provision of student welfare policies and programs (including 'Discipline') is essential in developing a sense of self-worth and fostering personal development.

1.1 Discipline

A registered non-government school must have policies relating to discipline of students attending the school that are based on principles of procedural fairness.

(Registered and Accredited Individual Non-government Schools (NSW) Manual Section 3.6.2)

'Procedural fairness is a basic right of all when dealing with authorities. Procedural fairness refers to what are sometimes known as the 'hearing rule' and the 'right to an unbiased decision'.

The 'hearing rule' includes the right of the person against whom an allegation has been made to:
Know the allegations related to a specific matter and any other information which will be taken into account in considering the matter

Know the process by which the matter will be considered

Respond to the allegations

Know how to seek a review of the decision made in response to the allegations.

The right 'to an unbiased decision' includes the right to:

- Impartiality in an investigation and decision-making
- An absence of bias by a decision-maker.

(Registered and Accredited Individual Non-Government Schools (NSW) Manual p33)

As teachers and Principals often combine both the roles of investigator and adjudicator it may be preferable to have another appropriate officer carry out investigations where possible.

'In matters where a long suspension, expulsion or exclusion (from a system of schools) is contemplated, the gravity of the circumstances requires particular emphasis to be given to procedural fairness. This includes the offer of having a support person/ observer attend formal interviews. The key points of the interview/ discussion should be recorded in writing.’

(Registered and Accredited Individual Non-Government Schools (NSW) Manual p34)

‘A registered non-government school must have must have policies relating to discipline of students attending the school that do not permit corporal punishment.’
(Registered and Accredited Individual Non-Government Schools (NSW) Manual p34)

1.2 Approach to discipline

An effective approach to discipline is one motivated by love and its corollaries of patience, kindness, mercy and good manners towards others. In dealing with students, staff are should endeavour not to be irritable or resentful, nor glad when a student is caught out doing wrong. Rather, staff members are glad when a person, who has done wrong in the past, seeks to improve their attitude and behaviour.

It is noted a wise person will establish a good relationship with others within a positive and supportive environment (Matthew 7:12). The principles of natural justice, which includes the ‘hearing rule’ and the ‘right to an unbiased decision’ should permeate all effective inter-relationships, particularly where discipline is concerned.

This does not mean staff ought to be naive or easily deceived. Staff members are to be approachable and available, and to seek opportunities to praise and uplift others. (Hebrews 3:13; Acts 15:32)

1.3 Goals of Self Discipline

The aim of discipline is to help correct and develop behaviour so that self-discipline may grow. As followers of Jesus, discipline may develop further by leading not just to self-control but to a Christ-controlled life.

Implications:

1. A self-controlled person does not resort to idle threats and blustering.
2. A person must understand why their behaviour is considered wrong.
3. A person must take time to listen to others.
4. A person must be patient with explanations.
5. We expect others to be well behaved.

“Make every effort to add to your faith, goodness; and to goodness, knowledge; and to knowledge, self-control.” (2 Peter 1:6).

1.4 Respectful Responsibilities

We all need to show respect to each other, because what we do will always influence others. (1 Corinthians 12:26).

As each of us is part of this Christian community we should obey God's instructions and use the gifts God has given us for the common good not leading others astray. (1 Corinthians 12:7; 1 John 3:7).

Discipline should recognise the age and maturity of the person and not belittle the person through word or deed.

Implications:

1. We will talk politely to those in authority, and our peers.
2. We will obey those whom God has placed in authority over us.
3. If we do not understand, or agree with an instruction we have been given by someone in authority we will obey and then approach them respectfully, at a time convenient to them.

1.5 Fair and Just Discipline

Discipline should not provoke others through unjust or unfair treatment.

"Fathers, do not exasperate your children; instead, bring them up in the training and instruction of the Lord." (Ephesians 6:4).

Although the verse above is written for fathers, it should also apply for those who are delegated the responsibility of training children.

Similarly teachers and parents are warned not to cause those under their authority to sin. (Mark 9:42).

Implications:

1. Punishment should be appropriate to the wrongdoing; and be seen, by the person disciplined, after discussion, to be appropriate, fair and consistent for the individual child.
2. All discipline should be in accord with God's Word.

1.6 Legalism is not Discipline

A legalistic approach to discipline is not consistent with God's character as revealed in the scriptures.

Implications:

1. Discipline should always contain mercy, grace, fairness and justice.
2. Discipline should always consider the individual and the situation.
3. Discipline should be authoritative not authoritarian

2. Policy

It is the policy of Sapphire Coast Anglican College to comply completely with the principles described in Section 3.7 of the 'Registered and Accredited Non-Government Schools (NSW) Manual'.

Specifically the College will exercise procedural fairness in all investigations and adjudications, employing sanctions appropriate to the action under investigation and aimed at correcting inappropriate attitudes and behaviours and developing self-discipline. At no time or in any circumstance, will a teaching staff member or parent volunteer-helper employ corporal punishment at Sapphire Coast Anglican College or in any off-campus school related activity.

The care of all students is a most important concern for Sapphire Coast Anglican College. It is the policy at our College that all students will be treated with respect and care at all times. It is expected that all students will respond in a like manner.

A caring College community assists in the development of both the welfare of students and the opportunity to achieve excellence. Factors, which contribute to this development are self discipline and the establishment of behaviour acceptable to the community and to God. It is recognised that during a student's stay at Sapphire Coast Anglican College he/she should progress from a Primary School environment, typified by a great deal of adult direction, to a Secondary School environment, where the transition from dependence to independence is supported, and into the more adult culture of Senior School where extensive self discipline is expected of teenagers entering adulthood.

2.1 The Assertive Discipline Approach (Lee Canter & Bill Rogers)

Key ideas:

- A teacher must insist and expect responsible behaviour from the students
- Maintain adequate classroom discipline
- Both students and teachers have rights.

2.2 The Assertive Discipline Model:

- A clear indication of the rules
- Reminders of the rules
- Indication of consequences
- Establishment of a positive discipline system
- Use of positive consequences as opposed to negative
- Negative consequences are to be graded in severity.

2.3 Implementation of the Assertive Discipline Model

- Step One recognise and remove 'roadblocks'
- Step Two practice use of assertive response styles
- Step Three learn to set limits
- Step Four learn to follow-through on limits
- Step Five implement a system of positive consequences

This approach, developed by the Canters, is a program aimed at "corrective" control. It is hinged on positive behavioural management. The Canters define assertiveness as "business like communication of reasonable teacher expectations and disapproval followed by a clear indication of what the student is to do".

The assertive teacher reminds students of the rules, and indicates what should be done. This may include the assertive use of questions to convey limits.

The main focus of Canter's model is on assertively insisting on proper behaviour from students, with well-organised procedures for following through when they do not. The model provides a very strong system of corrective discipline.

This method aims to establish a positive discipline system that reinforces the teacher's authority to teach and control in order to ensure an environment that is optimal for learning. This entails using rewards and punishments in the behavioural sense. Positive consequences are believed to be more powerful in shaping student behaviour than negative ones. If students violate rules deliberately, it is recommended that the negative consequences that result, should be graded in severity according to the number of times the offence is repeated during the lesson.

2.4 Benefits of the Assertive Discipline Approach

- It enables teachers to use class time more productively for teaching
- It serves to prevent discipline problems from occurring as students have a clear understanding of the consequences of keeping and breaking the rules
- It can provide supportive control when a warning is all that is required

Teachers have basic educational rights in their classrooms including-

- The right to establish optimal learning environments
- The right to request and express appropriate behaviour
- The right to receive help from administrators and parents as needed

Students also have basic rights in the classroom, including:

- The right to have teachers who help limit self-destructing behaviour
- The right to choose how to behave, with full understanding of the consequences that automatically follow their choices

The needs, rights, and conditions are best met through the assertive discipline approach in which the teacher clearly communicates the expectations to the students and consistently follows-up with appropriate actions, but never violates, the best interests of the students.
